DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The present Office action is made in response to the amendment filed on 5/24/2004. It is noted that in the mentioned amendment, applicant has canceled claims 1-8 and 10-15, amended claim 9 and simultaneously added new claim 16 into the application. As a result of the enter of the amendment, the pending claims are claims 9 and 16.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

3. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Geschwentner (U.S. Patent No. 6,011,647, of record).

Geschwentner discloses a microscope having an illuminating system and an observation system. The illuminating system as described in column 3 and shown in figures 1 and 2 comprises a light source system (1), a further light source (22), a collector lens system (2), a diaphragm (3), a further lens element (5) and a deflecting element having a mirrored surface (6). It is noted that the collector lens system and the further light source (22) are supported by a slider (21). The movement of the slider will alternatively insert either the collector lens system (2) into the light path or the further light source (22) into the system. It is noted that when the light source (22) is in the system then the light source (1) is turned off. See column 3, lines 45-55. The arrangement of the light source (22) when the collector lens system (2) is removed from the system or the light path of the light source (1) will reduce the light intensity of light coming to an object. The observation system comprises a main objective lens (7). The light passing through the collector lens system or the light from the further light source will pass through other optical elements of the system before it is guided through the main objective lens (7).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
5. Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Geschwentner.

The microscope having an illuminating system and an observation system wherein a collector lens assembly and a further light source supported by a slider wherein either the lens system or the further light source is used for illuminating an object with different illumination pattern and thus for reducing light intensity of light on an object as provided by Geschwentner meets all of the features relating to the optical components claimed in claim 16. The only thing missing from the art of Geschwentner is that he does not explicitly state a method for adjusting the position of the illuminating light on the object. However, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize the microscope provided by Geschwentner by setting forth a set of steps including the step of moving the module and/or pivoting the second mirror located inside the module for the purpose of adjusting the position of the focus point on the object and thus making one area of the object in a field of view become darken or brighten.
